

BLOODY BATTLE RAGING TODAY AT ADRIANOPOLE

Thousands Fall in Terrible Struggle When Bulgarians are Forced Back by the Turks

BATTLE LINE STRETCHES FOR FIFTY MILES

Decisive Conflict is Said to be on in the Balkans Today—Moslem Troops Number 140,000, While the Fighting Force of the Bulgarians is 120,000—Turks Execute Brilliant Sortie, But Ranks are Decimated by Terrific Fire of Artillery.

Vienna, Oct. 23.—Moving forward from Adrianople in an unexpected advance, 140,000 Turkish soldiers are engaged today with 120,000 Bulgarians north and east of that city in the bloodiest battle of the Balkan war.

Dispatches received here throughout the day said that the battle of Adrianople probably will be the decisive conflict in the Balkan troubles.

Stretched in battle line nearly 50 miles long between the heights of Kelesse and the northern suburbs of Adrianople a terrific struggle is going on at every point.

Late advices said that the Bulgarians were being driven back and that Czar Ferdinand's army had already lost 7,000 men killed, wounded and taken prisoners. The Turkish losses were equally heavy, due to the deadly artillery fire of the Bulgarian batteries.

A telegram from Constantinople said that the Turkish government has received notification that the entire Ottoman army at Adrianople was engaged.

Moving from the beleaguered city of Adrianople in a brilliant sortie, the Turks drove back the Bulgarian lines, and after twelve hours of fighting, what several days had looked like inevitable Turkish defeat was turned to apparent victory.

But the Bulgarians fought fiercely, contending every inch of ground that they were compelled to give up. The Bulgarian batteries stationed on the towering hills fired unceasing volleys into the ranks of the Turkish soldiers.

The principal divisions of both armies were thrown into the fight around Kirk Kelesse, where the battle raged fiercest.

Kalimandja and Tundja are reported to have been taken by the Turks at the point of the bayonet.

While the telegrams received here indicated that the Turks were having no difficulty in routing the Bulgarians, experts here did not regard the messages as conclusive and expressed belief that it might be 48 hours before the news of the battle would be known.

It is pointed out that Bulgarian retreat may not have been forced as the Bulgarian generals may have decided to occupy strategic points in their rear.

Athens, Oct. 23.—The Greek army defeated the Turkish troops this morning between Ellasosa and the mountains, after a vigorous attack and the Turks are now in retreat towards the town of Servia, according to a dispatch from Crown Prince Constantine, received this morning.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 23.—Terrific fighting was in progress today along the Bulgarian frontier, according to official dispatches. The Bulgarian forces operated against Adrianople, reaching Arda, situated to the west of the Turkish stronghold. After a sharp engagement, the Turks fled, leaving one hundred dead.

London, Oct. 23.—The important Turkish town of Novipazar in the district of the same name, was captured

NEGRO CONFESSED TO THE MURDERS

Indianapolis, Oct. 22.—Frank W. Smith, colored, today confessed to the murder of Frank Coxall and Philip Lepper, whites, near the state fair ground last October 20th. The negro was arrested in Louisville and brought here today.

LIBRARY DELEGATES WERE TREATED TO EXCELLENT ORATORICAL PROGRAM

Despite inclement weather, an audience of good proportions gathered at the High School Auditorium Tuesday night to listen to the address of Dr. F. L. Heeter, superintendent of schools of Pittsburgh, who spoke to the members of the Ohio State Library Association, taking as his subject, "Old Fashioned and New Fashioned Education."

Dr. Heeter is no means a stranger in educational circles, and came to Newark preceded by an enviable reputation as a deep thinker and a ready and forceful speaker on subjects educational. His address was a scathing arraignment of some of the more harmful fallacies of the school system of today, tempered, however, by a clear realization of the difficulty of the problem and an ever-present sense of humor. Ignoring hide-bound conventions, and couching his message in language of both dignity and power, he painted a series of word pictures contrasting the education of yesterday with that of today and tomorrow, and closed with a plea for earnest co-operation between libraries and schools for the greater good of the children of (Continued on page 9, col. 3.)

COMING EVENTS.
"The Business Girls' Luncheon" at the Plymouth Congregational Church at 5:30 o'clock Friday evening. Every working girl in Newark cordially invited.
The address before the bar association at the court house during "motion hour," nine to ten o'clock, Saturday morning, by Judge Holloway, former member of Indiana and New York State Bar Associations and former member of the Indiana legislature.
Don't forget the big parade next Monday night. Further announcements later.

The most persistent rainfall of the season last night proved insufficient to even slightly dampen the fires of revival that have been fanned into flames throughout Newark by Dr. Milford H. Lyon. In spite of the continued attacks of the elements, the flare of the glorious gospel of Christ is shining into the hearts and lives of men and women of this city with a brilliance that has never before been known. Souls are being saved for the kingdom of God, and the ways of wickedness and viciousness are beginning to feel the assault that has been committed upon them by the righteousness of the Spirit as it has found its way into the actions of Newark's citizens.

Last night's meeting at the big tabernacle was one of the most vitally interesting that has yet been held, two thousand persons attending in spite of a constant downpour of rain. The tabernacle was warm and dry, however, and in the songs of the opening service and the excellent sermon by Dr. Lyon, the audience soon forgot the unpleasantness of their trip to the building.

The crowd was augmented by the arrival of three hundred members of the local Masonic fraternity, carrying the insignia of their order and wearing small American flags in their coat lapels. They were seated in a cross formation symbolic of the purity of their fraternal creed, while the cross surmounted banner of the order was hung in front of the pulpit.

The Masons took an active part in the opening song service, joining in the choruses with a zeal that was really inspiring. They expressed a preference for the "New Glory Song" and this rousing number was sung time and again. The music of the evening was made particularly interesting by the rendition of "Peace, Peace, Wonderful Peace," by a quartette of Masons, comprising Messrs. Carey Ferguson, Merle Marshall, Fred Cosway and Charles W. Klopff.

The great respect and admiration which Prof. R. E. Mitchell has won by his genial spirit was evidenced by the round of applause that greeted him when he reached the tabernacle a few minutes late. The opening numbers, "Revive us Again" and "Onward Christian Soldier" were directed by Rev. Mr. Warner of the Congregational church, who is head of the general music committee. Mr. Warner did very nicely and received the support of the audience, but it required the strong power of the director to bring out all the music of the great congregation. "Oh, How You'll Love Him" and "Tell Him Wherever You Go" never sounded better than last night, and deserved the words of commendation given by Prof. Mitchell.

Many From Frazersburg
During the song service a delegation of 37 persons from Frazersburg arrived, and received a hearty welcome from the committee as well as from Dr. Lyon in his opening remarks.

The prayer of the evening was offered by Rev. Mr. Sparks of the First M. E. church, and was a powerful impression with Christ for the bringing of souls into the kingdom, a request for strength to maintain the cause of righteousness and development.

BUTCHERS ATTACKED BY WOMEN

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Hundreds of Berlin housewives joined in a riot here today when the butchers refused to sell meat imported by the municipality in an effort to reduce the cost of living. Native grown meat was trampled to the ground, windows broken and stanzas torn down, until the police closed the riot by stopping the market.

TURKISH ARMIES RUSH TO THE BALKAN FRONTIER TO PROTECT COUNTRY FROM INVASION OF DETERMINED FORCES OF ALLIES

Turkish soldiers leaving Constantinople for the front.

Thousands of Turkish soldiers are leaving Constantinople for the Balkan frontier, whither they were preceded by other thousands of Moslem fighting men. The Ottoman government appreciates the fact that this is a fight to retain its foothold in Europe and every man who can fight is being pressed into service. The accompanying pictures were taken in Constantinople and show Turkish soldiers being hurried to the seat of war.

DECAPITATED BODY OF EAST NEWARK WOMAN FOUND ALONG RAILROAD TRACK

Grimly determined to end her life, after several days' brooding, Mrs. Mary Keehn, aged 63 years, wife of a mould-maker living at 139 Wing street, deliberately laid her neck on the rails under a Pennsylvania freight train Wednesday morning at 5:30 o'clock and allowed the wheels to pass over her.

Her body was found by a workman employed at the Heisey Glass Company's plant, while he was on his way to work. Death was instantaneous. Mrs. Keehn's head being cut off close to her shoulders.

When the body was found, a telephone message was sent to police headquarters, and Wagonman No.

Chare notified Undertakers Bazler & Bradier. This firm made a quick trip to the scene in the auto ambulance, the police officer accompanying the ambulance.

Coroner W. E. Wiyiarch was also notified and he hurried to the point where the body was found, and after a brief inspection of the surroundings, ordered the body removed to the undertakers' morgue.

That Mrs. Keehn's death was the result of a deliberately planned suicide, there is no doubt. She left home at an early hour, leaving her husband still asleep in his room.

Before leaving home, the unfortunate woman went up stairs to the front bedroom and laid out a complete outfit of clean clothing, a silent expression of her desire to be enshrouded in the garments for burial.

She made her way to the head of Madison avenue, where the street intersects with the Pennsylvania Company's right of way. A freight train was standing on the west bound track, the engine taking water at the big tank east of the Heisey factory.

While there were no witnesses to the accident, there is every indication that the woman waited patiently along the track until the train was ready to start. She then placed her head on the rails beneath the wheels and allowed the train to pass over her body.

The train crew knew nothing of the tragedy until the body was discovered shortly afterward by the workman. The freight had not left the east end of the yards, and after being told of the woman's death, the conductor ordered the train held until the coroner viewed the body and ordered it removed.

The dead woman was 63 years old and has lived in the Wing street home for the past ten years. Her husband was formerly employed as a mould-maker at the Heisey factory,

ROOSEVELT REFRESHED BY SLEEP

Orster Bay, Oct. 23.—A long night's sleep largely offset the wearisome efforts of Colonel Roosevelt's trip to Orster Bay, and he was greatly refreshed when he awoke this morning. He expects to sit up several hours today.

Word was given out that no visitors would be permitted to see the Colonel today. His physicians told him yesterday that he must see no one until Thursday and that upon his obedience to their orders for absolute rest depends his chances of resuming the work of the campaign.

PRESIDING JUDGES OF THE ELECTION

Columbus, Oct. 23.—The vote which determines which party shall have presiding judges of the precincts is that polled for governor in 1910, according to the ruling today of Assistant Secretary of State Secret.

APPEAL OF BECKER'S ATTORNEY

New York, Oct. 23.—"Not a single person save the self-confessed murderer Jack Rose has ever connected Becker with these gun men," Jack Rose, the hell of assassins, the hell of robbers, who will not kill men." In these words John P. McIntyre, chief counsel for Lieut. Charles F. Becker, on trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, sounded the keynote of the appeal to the jurors to acquit his client of the murder.

He told the jury that in the first place they must find before convicting Becker, that the four gun men were guilty of the killing, otherwise the case would fail.

"Rose cannot be believed," he charged, "because he was testifying to save his own life. Sam Schepps, Bridge Webber and Harry Vallen are murderers and with the same object in view."

DEMOCRATS HAD FINE MEETING AT UNION STATION

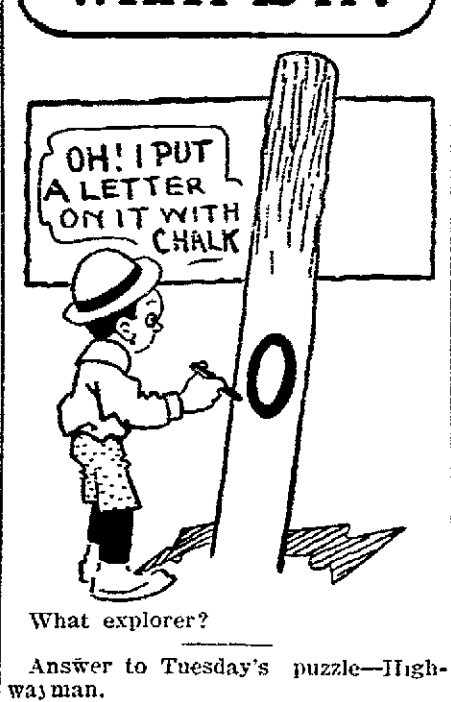

The heavy rainfall of Tuesday night did not prevent a number of Democrats from attending the rally meeting at Union Station, at which several Newark men were scheduled to speak.

Such a feeling of good fellowship prevailed that set speeches were dispensed with and all took part in a rather informal discussion of the matters of importance. Probate Judge Robbins Hunter, candidate for re-election; J. Howard Jones, candidate for prosecuting attorney, and Attorney Henry C. Ashcraft, all of this city, attended the meeting and addressed the gathering.

"RED" DAVIDSON'S TRIAL OCT. 30

New York, Oct. 23.—Red Phil Davidson, slayer of Jack Zelig, pleaded "not guilty" to the indictment, before Justice Goff today. October 30th was set for the hearing of the case.

WHAT IS IT?

Answer to Tuesday's puzzle—Highway man.

STRICKEN AT PRAYER MEETING.

Mrs. John W. Richards, 68, of 51 Charles street, was stricken with paralysis Wednesday morning while attending a neighborhood prayer meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles W. Hill, of Charles St. Both legs were made useless by the stroke and her condition is regarded as serious.

Mrs. Richards has been attending as many of the services at the tabernacle as her health would permit and attended most of the neighborhood prayer meetings held in the vicinity of her home. Wednesday morning she had just concluded a fervent prayer as a part of the service at the Hill home, when she was seized with the stroke. She fell to the floor helpless, and a hurry call was sent for Dr. P. H. Cosner.

While the stroke was quite severe, it is thought it will not result fatally.

tunity for all her power of interpretation and artistic finesse.
Dr. Lyon's theme, "Not Far From the Kingdom," was based upon the reply that Jesus made to his inquirer when he acknowledged the validity of the two great commandments found in Mark 12:34. "And when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said unto him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God."
"It is interesting to note how our Lord Jesus always put the very best possible construction on every human motive. He was in the shadow of the cross. For days his enemies had been dogging his footsteps, trying to entrap him in his talk. They had been playing him with numerous questions and at last one step out from the ranks whose manner seemed stamped with sincerity. This scribe put this question to our Lord. "Which is the greatest commandment of all?" and quoting the book of Deuteronomy, Jesus replied in the words of the few preceding verses. "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy soul and with all thy mind and with all thy strength. . . . Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these." And this scribe seemed to enter into this reply with sincerity and enthusiasm and said, "For to love God with all thy heart, soul, mind and strength and thy neighbor as thyself is greater than to sacrifice and burn offerings." And we are told that Jesus saw the man answered wisely and said to him, "Thou art near to the Kingdom of God."
The kingdom of God was the central truth in the teaching of our Lord. John the Baptist came proclaiming the coming of the kingdom. Jesus went everywhere in his ministry preaching the kingdom. He did not talk about salvation. He talked more about the causes that produced salvation and that is citizenship in the kingdom of God, and after his resurrection from the grave, during those forty days before his ascension He taught the things concerning the kingdom of God.
The Blessings Promised.
"Who are citizens? The citizens of the kingdom are those who take the king of that kingdom as their personal king and Lord. What are the blessings that come to them—protection, inheritance, salvation, progress and eternal joy.
"That one is not far from the kingdom of God who understands clearly the requirements for entrance. If it were not serious it would be ridiculous what foolish ideas some people have regarding salvation through Christ. You say you are a Christian? You say, 'Sure, I'm a Christian. My mother was a splendid Christian.' Because a man's mother was a Christian, he thinks that's going to save him. I say to another man, 'Are you a Christian?' and he says 'My wife is one of the very best Christians in this town.' Some men keep their religion like their property—in their wife's name.
"Another says, 'I have always been a Christian. Friends are you married?' 'Yes,' some one replies. 'How long have you been married?' Seven years, he replies. 'Next November,' he replies. Why don't you say, 'I have always been married.' Salvation, regeneration is as much a definite act as matrimony.
"One man in a community was asked 'Are you a Christian?' and he replied, 'Certainly. My partner attends church every Sunday morning.' Coming to find out what the man meant was that his partner went to church every Sunday, put half a dollar in the collection and then on Monday morning charged it up to the firm. He thought he had a share in the salvation.
"There are all about us those that are going to trust to their partnership in this or that, or to their money, education, social connections, for everlasting life."
How Good Are You?
"That one is not far from the kingdom of God who realizes that there must be repentance toward sin and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. That one is not far from the kingdom who frankly and honestly admits his own sinfulness. It is amusing to hear some people tell how good they are? You have talked with some and the first thing they tell you is that they are one of the best individuals in the community; no one is more kind, philanthropic, liberal, and as that man goes on pestering you, you have sometimes wondered why the wings hadn't begun to sprout.
"Whenever you find that kind of a person, you can put it down that he is wickedly bad, that he is trying to whitewash and sugar coat his own wickedness. The closer you get, I approach the sun of righteousness, Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the more frank and ready and honest we will be to admit our shortcomings and our sins.
"That man is not far from the kingdom of God who admits that he is sinful, who has in his heart honestly and sincerely a love for the things that are good and true and honest and pure. It has rejoiced where men are taking a stand for Christ, to put some question like this, 'How many are glad to see so many coming out on the Lord's side?' and then to see a large number of those who have not yet taken a definite stand for Christ to be among the first to spring to their feet and declare that they are glad to see others coming out for God.
"I want to put this frankly and honestly to you. Have you been rejoicing to see so many taking this stand for Jesus Christ? Have you been glad to see these strong and noble men and women and young people take the son of God as their personal Lord and Saviour and Master. Or has there been down in your heart a secret indignation and anger.
Are you Glad to See Them?
"Have you ever said to yourself, 'I wish so many would not go to the front, wouldn't take a stand for Christ?' Do you love fellowship with God's people. Do you love to hear the word of God expounded and read? Do you enjoy fellowship with the good and godly? Do you take delight in singing and hearing sung these gospel songs? Is there to you a feeling of satisfaction and of delight in knowing that here in Newark the kingdom of God is being built up, that wickedness and vice are being dethroned and righteousness and purity and excellence are being enthroned. I believe there are many of you who have taken a public stand for Jesus Christ, and closed the deal, and yet can honestly answer that 'I am glad to see so many coming on the side of Jesus Christ; I am glad to be in the fellowship of Christian people; I enjoy hearing God's word and hearing it expounded and explained; I delight in hearing these gospel songs and I am rejoicing to hear that the cause of righteousness and purity is being advanced.'

"If you answer that in the affirmative, God is saying to you, as he said to that scribe centuries ago, 'Thou art not far from the kingdom.'
"But nearness to the kingdom of God is not enough. You might be within two blocks of a train when it pulled out from the station or of a steamer when it goes out from that Atlantic pier, to sail across the ocean and you would get left just as much as if you were a mile or ten miles or a hundred miles away. Supposing in an election that you received within ten votes of as many as the successful candidate. You would be defeated just as much as if you did not have a vote at all." Dr. Lyon augmented this comparison with that of a man coming within one number of drawing a prize at the recent Rosebud reservation lottery.
"You'd say, 'That doesn't do you any good. You are no better off than if you didn't get any number at all.'
"There are many that way to whom the Lord gives the commendation, 'Thou art not far from the kingdom of God,' said Dr. Lyon. "You may be right in front of the kingdom, almost to the threshold. But entrance to the kingdom of God is a definite act just as much as entering into the army of the United States is a definite act. As long as you are outside of it you are just as much outside as a man that is far away from it.
Not Too Self-Satisfied.
"Nearness to the kingdom of God is apt to produce in the mind a feeling of self satisfaction and sufficiency and complacency. A man says 'I am not a wicked man. I am not vicious. I am not dishonest. I am not a deadbeat. I pay my debts. I believe I have the reputation of being charitable, clean morally and I ought not be classed with those whose influence is on the wrong side. I am a pretty good sort of a fellow and it wouldn't make very much change in my life to make a definite stand for Jesus Christ.'
"That very fact that you are near the kingdom may prove your very undoing," cautioned the evangelist. "Because you are so near you will say, 'Any time I please I can enter the kingdom, so I'll remain away a little longer.'
Historical counterpart of this was found in the attitude of Hannibal, whose men permitted themselves to become complacent by great luxury and finally were defeated by the Romans in that world famous siege. "His nearness to the victory was the cause of his defeat," declared the speaker.
"Nearness to the kingdom of God is a position absolutely untenable and inconsistent. If it is right to live near it, it is right to live in the kingdom of God. The Christian life admits of no neutrality. If Jesus Christ is what he claims to be, the very God of very Gods, if he has the power on earth to forgive sin and grant to you and me everlasting life, it is the greatest and mightiest fact of all the universe. If Jesus Christ is not all that he claims, if he hasn't the power to forgive sin, he isn't the great humbug and impostor this world ever knew, and is unworthy of even our admiration and respect.
"Between these positions for any thinking person there is no neutral ground. You must accept one position or the other. It would be as if a moral issue was aroused in your community, and there was some man who claimed to be a good citizen and to love his city and community, had the heart, and yet would be unwilling to take a definite and positive stand and let his influences support the right. If the issue is a moral issue it is your business and mine, as moral people, to let our influence count positively for righteousness."
Your Influence Essential.
"Nearness to the kingdom of God without entering into the kingdom makes our influence upon others especially detrimental. I am absolutely sure of my ground in this and all I ask is that you will be very fair in your mind as you consider this: 'For a man to live a fairly good, honest, upright life and yet reject Jesus Christ and take no definite stand for the Christian life, from the spiritual standpoint, that man's influence in the community is more disastrous and more detrimental than a life that is openly degraded, debauched and vicious.'
"But someone says, 'That is a very strong thing to say. You'll have to prove it. Well, I can prove it to the satisfaction of every thinking man in this audience,' said Dr. Lyon, after repeating the arraignment.
"While it is true that virtue is better than vice, and honesty better than dishonesty, yet it is not also true that the one that is the best citizen, the one who has the best influence on your life is the best citizen? Let me ask you, 'How about the man that is degraded, debauched, vicious?' You say, 'He has no influence on me. He only repels me.' Is it not true that the better, straighter and more upright and honest a man is, the greater will be the influence of that man upon you? Everyone admits it. Now then, my friend, just as a lie that is more upright, more clean and pure has more influence on you, so you, by living that kind of a life, have the strongest influence on others.
"Then they will say, 'Here's So-and-so. I respect him. If that man can live as clean a life as he does without being a Christian so can I. Do you not see, by rejecting Jesus Christ the very fact of your honesty and your purity is being thrown in the scales against our Lord?'

Was Hindering Others.
Dr. Lyon declared that this was forcibly brought home to him on the night he made his confession of Christ. A few minutes afterward one of his school friends, although not a classmate, came down the aisle and accepted Christ. After the meeting this young fellow told how for three years he had respected Dr. Lyon and had refused to accept Christ as his Saviour because Lyon's influence was one that seemed based on uprightness and honesty. "I had no idea that seemed based on uprightness and honesty. 'I had no idea I had any influence on that man,' commented the evangelist. "We never met in the classrooms. He was a scientific student; I was a classical. Yet, by his statement, for three years I had kept him from Jesus Christ and the Christian life. The very fact that you have led a decent, honest, upright life makes your influence either stronger for Christ or against him."
Nearness to the kingdom leaves no soul without an excuse for not being a Christian. Let me suppose a case. There are two young men, one living in a college town, near the campus. His parents are well to do. The other one is poor, his mother is a widow and lives nearly five hundred miles away. Having the family of his widowed mother to support, he still wants to go to college. Which of these two would have the least excuse for not having a college education? Why, you say, that's plain. Certainly the young fellow that lived in the college town and has a chance to go to college has far less excuse than the young man hundreds of miles away amid unfavorable surroundings.
"Against what city was it that Jesus spoke his strongest indictment? Was it against Sodom or Tyre? You say it was against Capernaum. What was Capernaum? It was the city that had seen Jesus do many of His greatest works and wrought His marvelous miracles. Jesus said to that city, 'Oh, Capernaum, Capernaum, thou in thy opportunities are exalted to heaven. I tell thee thou shalt be cast down to hell. If the mighty work that had been done in thee had been done in Sodom it would have repeated long ago in sack cloth and ashes. I tell thee, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment than it will be for thee.' And again Jesus said, 'Of him to whom much is given shall much be required.'
Rather Be a Hindu.
"Friend! I would rather be a starriving Hindu on the banks of the Ganges than to be an indifferent, unbelieving, rejecting soul in the midst of the opportunities and privileges of a cultured Christendom.
"And again, nearness to the kingdom of God ought to awaken in our hearts an element of urgency. For, friends, we are not always going to be so near the kingdom. Success has been defined as taking advantage of an opportunity. There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at its flood, leads on to glory."
The value of urgency in the acceptance of opportunities was shown by the fact that Dr. Lyon, by deferring an expected visit to the Yosemite Valley "until the following year," had seemingly started a series of contrary events which has prevented him from making the proposed trip. Supporting this same idea, Dr. Lyon told of planning to spend a vacation in Arizona and his desire to come back by way of the Grand Canyon. He heeded the advice of a friend and arranged his trip so that he would make the "going trip" via the Grand Canyon, and it was well that he did so, for he was called from his vacation by a telegram stating that "all the children were down with scarlet fever."
"The very fact that you have a love for the things that are good and true and pure, that you are glad to see others coming out on the Lord's side, the very fact that the Lord has given to you that commendation that you are not far from the kingdom, ought this night to awaken in your heart that element of immediateness, for the chances are that you will not always remain so very near to the kingdom of God for long.
"Nearness to the kingdom," continued Dr. Lyon, "without entering into the kingdom will make your doom just that much more black and bitter, for the realization that there was a time when you were so near to heaven that it seemed almost only a step for you to go over the line into the kingdom, that very fact in eternity, when memory will be awake, will make your remorse the more biting and bitter: on account of the very fact that you had been so near the kingdom, your doom will be intensified."
Lost, Although Near!
Dr. Lyon interposed at this point the story of a North Dakota ranchman who left home one morning when the sun was shining brightly and the stars were clear. He transacted business in a city a few miles away, and started on the home trip. "Suddenly," he related the evangelist, "the skies became dark and it became bitterly cold. Then the snow began to fall and there came one of those awful Dakota blizzards, and unless you have been in one you cannot imagine what they are like. He tried to keep his team in the track but before long the snow had so obscured the road he could not see where he was going. At last, overcome by the cold, he sank into unconsciousness.
"Night came on and those horses, guided by the homing instinct, some time in the night reached his own door yard. The next morning when the family arose, the blizzard now had ceased, and they cleared away the snow from the front of the house and there they found, between the house and the barn, in their own door yard, the team and sleigh. And in the bottom of that sleigh was the cold dead body of the husband and father. Almost home, and the fact of that nearness intensified the grief of that family.
"Don't pass over this lightly. You perhaps, have been comforting yourself on your good works and your cleanness of life, that you are pure and honest. You have been glad to see others coming out on the Lord's side and you can say from your heart, 'I rejoice in the advancing of God's kingdom,' and the Lord has given you that commendation that you are not far from salvation. My friends, if you merely remain near to the kingdom without entering in, you are eternal losers. Just that much the more blighting and the more damaging on account of that neglect."

Eternally Lost!
Recalling the wreck of the English steamer "Royal Charter" on the rocks near Liverpool a few years ago, Dr. Lyon told of the breaking of the news to the family of one of the sailors. Dr. William Taylor of Liverpool, one of the finest characters in the ranks of the British clergy, was the man who was commissioned to tell the sailor's wife, and he arrived at their little home just as they were preparing the breakfast. Expressing their surprise but happy satisfaction the wife joyfully told of the arrival of the "Royal Charter" and said that they were waiting for the husband and father to come home for his breakfast after the long trip.
"Then I took the two hands of that wife in mine," reported Dr. Taylor, "and as I looked into her face, I said, 'My good woman, I must tell you that you will never see your husband again on this earth. The "Royal Charter" struck upon the rocks at midnight and all on board have perished."
"Said that pastor," continued Dr. Lyon, "to my dying day I never can forget the sad, heart broken wall of that wife, who, with blanched face and bloodless lips, peered up and down that room, moaning and wailing her hands and exclaiming, 'Oh, husband, husband—so near home and yet lost, lost, lost!
"God forbid that that may be the sad wall of some soul throughout eternity. 'So near the kingdom of God and yet lost, lost, eternally lost,' said the evangelist, as with tears swelling from his eyes, he asked everyone to bow in silent prayer and then extended the invitation that brought thirty-five persons into the kingdom, many of whom are prominent in political and fraternal circles. One of the inspiring sights of the service was the consecration of their lives by seven members of the orchestra which has been furnishing music for the noon-day lunch and the evening services.

Splendid Talk Today.
The crowd of business men attending the noon luncheons at the First Presbyterian church continues to increase. Over 200 men were served today by the ladies of the West Main Street W. E. church, four long tables being completely filled, while many waited for others to finish before they could partake of the excellent dinner prepared for them. The interest of the business men has been aroused in a strong way men are participating in these luncheons who have not signified any desire for spiritual affiliation heretofore, and their influence for good in the community cannot be otherwise than advanced by their association with Dr. Lyon.
Following several selections by the orchestra and an excellent solo by Prof. Mitchell, Dr. Lyon spoke for about twenty minutes, discussing the gospel from the fifth chapter of Mark and applying it to present day conditions. "The talk was one of the strongest yet made at the noonday luncheons and the doctor's appeal to the business and professional men of the city to lay aside their prejudices and pride and acknowledge the Master, was an eloquent one, which greatly affected his auditors. Dr. Lyon discussed social evils and the punishment meted out by society to the man possessed of evil. He said that society stands helpless today before crime and showed the way how this condition could be remedied and an era of prosperity and progress by the acceptance of Jesus Christ which would result in the perpetuity of the nation.

GENERAL NOTES.
Have you looked up the meaning of the "kids' yell" yet? Here it is: "Sar, my chum, have you seen, 2d Timothy, 2:15? 1st Thessalonians, 5:22. Tell's exactly what to do."
Miss Maude Ricker, a member of the choir, was the victim of a fainting spell during the song service last evening and had to be given medical attention before she could be removed to her home.
Prof. Mitchell reports that the "new boy" down at Ironton is making a "screaming success of life."
Dr. Lyon last night successfully combated "lies" that are being spread around about him. Someone started the old story that has been attributed to Billy Sunday, about "the old red heifer" and insinuated that Dr. Lyon was the author of the words, "Just tell anyone that says anything like that 'he's a liar,' and say that I said so," was the biting comment the evangelist passed upon his lying critics.

Dr. Lyon will preach his sermon on "The Deltry of Christ," telling the story of his conversion from the infidelity of Unitarianism, on next Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon will be devoted to the "anti-tuberculosis" cause—and some other things.
Don't forget to wear your carnation tomorrow,—red if mother is living, a white one if she has passed to her eternal rest.

CHIROPRACTIC NOTES
For the Education of the Public and the Advancement of Chiropractic, by B. A. Te Pooten, D. C., No. 68 E. Main Street—Explanation of Chiropractic (Ki-ro-prack-tic).
The brain is the human dynamo, the spinal cord the transmitter of the force generated by the brain, the "spinal nerves" the conveyors of this force from brain to every organ of the body.
The path of these nerves leads them through soft structure and does not encounter hard until it passes between two vertebrae (back-bones) of the spine. At this place they pass between a movable circular opening, which is subject to excessive strained positions, which produce pressure upon nerves, hence interfere with the transmission of this "nerve force."
This minus or excessive quantity is only observed at the periphery, the same as a pressure upon hose cuts off water, but the difference in quantity of water is only noted at the nozzle.
The organ, viscera, muscle or other tissue, having its life cut off, displays it in innumerable forms called "dis-ease." This strained condition of vertebrae is SUBLOCATION.
The sublocation, then, becomes the fundamental, concrete fact which is the basis of Chiropractic. It is the physical representative of the cause of the dis-ease.
The physical representative of the cause of disease, male or female, is the spinal column. The chiropractor analyzes your case from that place gives you spinal adjustments at the back-bone, and at no time do you expose more than your back to him.
The causes of Nervousness, Heart, Lung, Liver, Stomach, Kidney, and Female Trouble, all forms of Paralysis and Rheumatism quickly removed. Nature then, having complete control cures the disease.

RACES AGAIN POSTPONED
Impossible to Get Track in Condition to Carry Out Three Days' Program.
The Newark Driving Park Association is having its troubles with the fall race meet, which should have started yesterday.
The rain of Tuesday spoiled the chances for that day, and then the continued cold and cloudy weather of Tuesday night and Wednesday made it impossible to get the track into condition to start the program Wednesday.
Announcement was made early today that no effort would be made to get the races going today. It is hoped that the condition of the track will allow the horsemen to get busy Thursday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock.
On this day Tuesday's program will be started. Wednesday's program is set for Friday, and Saturday will see the last three races started.
Of course, all this is planned in the hope that the weather man will smile kindly on the race plans.
Self assertive humility is only vanity turned the wrong side out.

HOW TO VOTE THE JUDICIAL TICKET

Under the new non-partisan Judicial Ticket law, the candidates for the various Judicial offices will appear on a separate ticket, with nothing to designate their political position. The following explanation of the ticket is given in order that Democratic voters and friends of the Democratic candidates may know how to mark their ballots. Those marked with the X are the Democratic nominees, and for these Democrats will vote. For convenience, the voter should cut this out and keep it.

BRIEF NEWS OF OHIO HAPPENINGS

Lima: In special session last night council passed a $100,000 bond issue ordinance providing for waterworks improvements.

Mt. Vernon: Word was received here Tuesday of the death of Henry B. Disney at Shoshone, Idaho. He was 60 years old and was a native of Milford township, this county.

Marysville: Mrs. Henry Brooks, wife of Union county treasurer, was stricken with paralysis yesterday while on a visit at the home of her sister in Richmond, and is in a very serious condition.

Delaware: Local motor cyclists have organized a club here and have planned several tours to nearby points. W. J. Grube is at the head of the organization.

East Liverpool: Mayor Marshall has issued an edict ordering a "safe and sane" observance of Halloween.

Portsmouth: Jesse Turner, 60, dropped dead in a hotel lobby here Tuesday. Heart failure was the cause of death.

Mansfield: "Buster," a small rat terrier owned by R. A. Glessner, stood guard for 18 hours Sunday night and Monday morning over his master's coat which fell from a buggy while Glessner was pleasure riding in the country. The dog and coat were found in the road Monday morning when Glessner retraced his route looking for the coat.

Akron: Charles Pizzi, machinist, used a 22-caliber rifle cartridge for a rivet. When he struck the cartridge with a hammer it exploded. The shell tore away part of his thumb, and cut a great gash in his nose and cheek and injured his eye.

Cambridge: The city council has passed an ordinance prohibiting Cambridge people from throwing bottles or other articles of glass in the streets.

Mt. Vernon: The stork was a busy bird here Monday night. Five babies, four boys and a girl, were left at as many homes. The happy fathers are George Harris, Sumner Campbell, Alva France, Benton Horn and G. C. Harris.

Coshocton: A training school for nurses for the new city hospital is assured. The school has been incorporated and the pupils will be addressed by prominent physicians.

Coshocton: Clarence Guenther and Brooks Johnson while fishing claim to have had a 7-foot pike on the hook but it got away in their desperate efforts to land the whopper. A landing net 4 feet deep was used and the fishermen declare that three feet of the fish's body stuck out the top of the net. And they were not drinking either.

Coshocton: Gray Ranne, 57, a pottery worker, died in Columbus Tuesday after a short illness. He was formerly a resident of Knox and Wayne counties.

Akron: F. H. Thomas, grocer was awakened at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning by a noise in the house. He took an electric flash lamp and threw the rays onto a masked man. The burglar fired point blank at Mr. Thomas and escaped. Tomes was uninjured.

Chardon: Marjory M. Patchett of Thomson charges cruelty in a petition for divorce from Charles M. Patchett. She also alleges he destroyed the only egg in the house to make it impossible for the children to have custard.

Lima: B. A. Parietti, aged 27, dived into a 30-foot cistern here yesterday and rescued his 2-year-old son from drowning. The father was attracted to the cistern by the child's cries of distress.

Marion: Burglars yesterday looted the Lawler Brothers grocery and before leaving set fire to it, causing a total loss of store and fixtures.

Marion: The October grand jury reported yesterday, returning six bills, including an indictment of William De Haven for the murder of Simon Glathart, August 31.

WANTS HEART BALM FROM NEWARKITE

Thomas W. Dupler Made Defendant in $10,000 Breach of Promise Suit—Other Court News.

Asking damages in the sum of $10,000 for breach of promise, Alta Holland, by her attorneys, C. O. Turner and J. C. Adams, of Coshocton, Wednesday morning filed her petition in common pleas court, making Thomas W. Dupler, owner of the Dupler meat market, the defendant.

The petition of the plaintiff recites that she and Mr. Dupler entered into a mutual agreement and promise to marry, the contract being made about the 20th of December, 1902, but the definite date of the wedding not being set.

The affiant avers that since that time she has remained unmarried, relying on the repeated promises of the defendant, and that since the time of the promise she has been ready and willing to marry Mr. Dupler. She states that on Dec. 22, 1911, she requested her betrothed to carry out his contract, which he has wholly failed to do, although a reasonable time has elapsed since the request.

By reason of the promises of Mr. Dupler, the plaintiff states that she has made her preparations for the wedding and has gone to considerable expense. Furthermore, the petition recites, she has suffered great worry and mental torture and has been humiliated because the defendant has refused to carry out his marriage contract. In view of all of which, she prays a judgment against him for damages in the sum of $10,000.

GEO. A. BALL

SUCCESSOR TO BRIGHT'S DISEASE WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Was One of Newark's Best Known Citizens—Had Envious Military Record.

George Allen Ball, aged 69, for years prominent in Newark's business circles, died Wednesday morning at his home, 101 East Church street, after an illness dating back to the fifteenth of August, when he last visited his store in South Park place.

While his death was not entirely unexpected, the announcement came as a distinct shock to his many friends. Bright's disease was assigned as the cause.

During his last illness he has been able to be up and around the house at various times, and as late as Tuesday he was in the yard for a short time. During the night his condition became worse and death came Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock.

Mr. Ball has been associated in several enterprises during his life in Newark. He was for years a partner in the Ball & Ward carriage factory located in East Church street. This business was established by his father and an uncle, Mr. Ward.

Some years ago he engaged in the shoe business in South Park place, with his son George A. Ball, Jr., and was active in the management of this business until stricken with his last illness.

He was born in Newark September 2, 1843. He attended the local schools during his youth and was still in his teens when the war of the rebellion broke out. He enlisted in Co. H, Third Ohio, in the 100-day service and later in the same year he again signed the enlistment papers, being assigned to the same company and regiment.

He was wounded in the thigh during the battle of Stone River and spent several months in the hospital, finally being discharged for disability. He enlisted in the Home Guards, being commissioned by Governor Todd as second lieutenant and later as first lieutenant of Co. C, Fifth Battalion.

In 1864 he enlisted in the 135th O. V. I., being given a first lieutenant's commission. Later in the same year he re-enlisted again in Co. K, 195th regiment, in which organization he served until the close of the war.

On October 15, 1868, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Jane Harris. The widow and two children, Miss Nellie H. Ball and George A. Ball, Jr., survive. He also leaves two brothers and four sisters. They are Theodora M. Ball of Newark and Isaac C. Ball of Butler, Mrs. John S. Fulton, Miss Charles E. Ball, Miss Alice M. Ball and Mrs. James Criswell.

The deceased was a member of the Second Presbyterian church, of the Odd Fellows, National Union and the Union Veterans Legion.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

COMMISSION OF J. P. MORGAN & CO. ONLY $13,500.00

New York, Oct. 22.—J. P. Morgan & Co. received $100,000 shares of stock for services in connection with the formation of the International Harvester Co. and that stock on August 14 was valued at $12,500,000. This was the testimony of William Hamilton of J. P. Morgan & Co., on the stand here today at a continuation of the government's hearing against the International Harvester Co. He was also requested to produce lists of owners of certificates who entered into an agreement with the Harvester company not to sell their stock before giving J. P. Morgan & Co. a chance to purchase, before September, 1903.

PARKER ASTOUNDED DID NOT KNOW OF BIG CONTRIBUTIONS

New York, Oct. 23.—Judge Alton B. Parker, the Democratic presidential candidate in 1904, said that he was astounded at the "colossal" contributions to the Democratic campaign fund in that year by Thomas Fortune Ryan, as revealed in the testimony before the Clapp committee in Washington.

"I have read the testimony of Mr. Ryan," said Judge Parker, "and I am astounded. I was always under the impression that Mr. Ryan and Mr. Belmont were leading contributors to the Democratic campaign, because the press said so, but that they were colossal contributors, as now appears, I never knew. Mr. Belmont favored my nomination, and Mr. Ryan had vigorously opposed it."

"It now appears from Mr. Ryan's testimony that late in the campaign hoped for by him, he paid a vast sum of money to meet debts of the national committee that the honor of the Democratic party might not be impugned. August Belmont is said to have joined in that undertaking. Neither they nor their friends ever gave to me a hint of this personal sacrifice—not for the candidate, but for the party to which they were attached."

"For eight years now they have suffered reproach, but I for one do not my hat to them. For the honor of the Democratic party—not in the hope of electing its candidate, for its defeat was amply assured in the closing weeks of the campaign—they made good the obligations of the organization, not out of the funds of corporations, but out of their own pockets."

"One outcome of the campaign of 1904 is the abolition of corporation contribution by federal statutes and by the statutes of this and many other states. These statutes, supplemented as they have been by requiring enforced publication of contributions, with the names of contributors, will ultimately do away with the practice of raising large sums of money to make merchandise of the votes of citizens and for this all good citizens will be thankful."

PRESIDENT WILL NOT RENEW THE BEVERLY LEASE

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 23.—President Taft today left Beverly on a three days' trip through the north, in an automobile, accompanied by Mrs. Taft, Miss Helen Taft and Secretary of State Knox. The president's lease on Parramatta expires this year, and the Beverly citizens do not look for his return.

KILLED FOR ACTIVITY IN VICE CRUSADE

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 23.—It is believed that the Italian woman known as Rose Dunnis, who was taken in an automobile by five men and murdered near the Tex Mills, was killed because of her activity in a vice crusade in Chicago.

TWO JUDGES OF COMMON PLEAS TO BE ELECTED NOV. 5

To the Voters of Licking, Delaware and Knox Counties:

As you doubtless know I have been nominated as candidate for Common Pleas Judge. The names of all candidates for judicial offices appear on a separate non-partisan ballot, and for this office there are four candidates, of whom two will be elected.

The Common Pleas Judge determines questions of property, questions of life and liberty, and has therefore a most important office. No man should be elected thereto because of his politics, or because of solicitation, but because of fitness alone.

I invite an investigation of my personal and professional record, and if you believe I am the man for the position, I ask you to vote for me and work for me. If you do not so believe you ought not to do either. I cannot hope to see or personally communicate with every voter, but I want my candidacy and my attitude toward it known. Yours truly,

Charles W. Montgomery

Mr. Montgomery is a member of the legal firm, Fitzgibbon & Montgomery, of Newark.

Before cocoa reaches its ready for consumption, it must pass through many different hands. After the beans have been pulled out from the pods, they must be polished by a very slow and laborious process. On the island of Trinidad, which raises an enormous crop of cocoa, this polishing is done by slowly tramping with the feet. The beans are placed on wooden platforms, especially built for the purpose. The polishing is done by the natives, both men and women, working, of course, with their bare feet. The longer the tramping process is kept up, the higher is the polish given to the beans, and the greater their market value. The accompanying snapshot was made by one of the tourists on the West Indian cruise of the S. S. "Moltke" of the Hamburg-American Line. It shows the workers actually at work. The annual product of cocoa from Trinidad runs into the thousands of tons.

Progress Has Arrived In This Actual Relief for RHEUMATISM Sciatica and Neuritis

We have held out hope with a lavish hand to the sufferers from rheumatism, sciatica and neuritis in this city, in our announcements printed during the past few days. They have taken us at our word, and the responsibility is very welcome, because of the tremendous amount of relief which these few days have already brought to this city.

If you could spend a half day in our store and hear the words of thanks—the honest expressions of gratitude from people who have not been free from pain before for years, you would understand our enthusiasm and our earnest desire that every sufferer within reach should learn of this new prescription, "Nurto."

It is not a patent medicine, and it does not contain the slightest trace of narcotics or opiates. A specialist in New York is responsible for this purely ethical prescription. His brother physicians have taken up the use of it and its name has extended until it reaches from coast to coast.

"Nurto" has done so much in relieving cases of the longest standing, cases which other remedies have been unable to relieve, completely banishing the uric acid from the system and thus removing the cause of all rheumatic diseases, that it sounds too good to be true.

But it is true. We will show you proof backed by affidavit—testimonials from people who had despaired of ever being cured. We want those sufferers who have well rich given up hope to call, telephone or write us for "Nurto." We give you positive assurance that you will secure complete relief by its use. A $1 box will convince you.

"Nurto"—a clean, legitimate prescription, measures the greatest progress ever made in fighting the terrible suffering of rheumatic diseases. In fairness to yourself, try it. Compounded by Magaral Chemical Co., Flatiron Bldg., N. Y.

WOODROW WILSON AND PROSPERITY IN PITTSBURG

No presidential campaign since the Civil war has produced a more pitiful spectacle than that now being given by the Republicans with their cry of "panic" and "soup kitchens." Those business men of the country who are sincerely realizing that greed has held sway too long, that the rule of justice and of right must be set up forthwith, are amused and amazed at the impudence of the managers of Mr. Taft's campaign. Take Pittsburgh, for instance, the greatest steel manufacturing center in the world. The People's National Bank, one of the big financial institutions of the Middle West, with resources of approximately $20,000,000, issues a weekly bank review, in the latest issue of which is to be found the following:

"General business enters the last quarter of the year under conditions as nearly ideal as are ever experienced. In nearly every situation there are usually some drawbacks, but at the present time, speaking for the Pittsburgh District, it may be said that the isolated complaints are due to causes inseparable from a state of maximum production and distribution of commodities. * * * The increased means for speedy intercommunication have the effect of uniting the minds of the people in all sections of the country more completely than ever before, so that a given state of trade sentiment in one section more quickly becomes the state of mind in all sections. Religion and Medicine

S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

Is there any intimate relation between religion and medicine?

Yes, there is. The old-time healer was also the priest. Theology and medicine have not maintained a separate existence very long. They used to be one. Yes, there is an intimate relation between religion and medicine.

I have found myself saying many times to people who have a chronic ailment, "You need religion as well as medicine. You need faith in an overruling providence that guides everything to wise ends; that the affliction of disease teaches a lesson that every one should strive to learn."

This does not mean that sick people are to sit down and trust that an overruling providence will do everything. Nothing of the sort. He is to use remedies guided by his best judgment, but in the use of them he can believe that all things are well and that in the end all things will come out right. Any medicine has a better chance to cure a man who holds such a faith.

Some men are so faithless and unbelieve, so restless and desperate, their minds so unsettled, that even the best of medicine has little chance to do them any good. Therefore I say that religion is often quite as necessary as medicine, that the want of religion frequently defeats the action of the best medicine.

Many a chronic invalid has searched in vain for a physical remedy simply because he has lost his grip on vital religion, the religion that not only provides salvation in the world to come, but soundness of body and mind in the world that is.

Yes, there is a most intimate relation between medicine and religion. Other things being equal, the irreligious man stands a poor chance of getting well when he is sick, while the religious man frequently gets well in the most astonishing way after the doctors have all given him up to die. With a firm faith in the right remedy and an obedient use of the right remedy, a great many hopeless invalids could be restored to perfect health.

Well, you have made it clear as to what you mean by religion. But what is the remedy you would recommend?

Of course I would recommend different remedies for different conditions. But the particular remedy that I am interested in at this time, the remedy that meets more chronic ailments than any other remedy I know of, is Peruna. Peruna is a remedy for that multitudinous group of ailments that are dependent upon catarrhal derangements.

I am furnishing a book on catarrhal diseases which I send to any person free. In this book I explain quite fully the uses of Peruna. Those who do not care to wait to send for the booklet at this time will find information and instruction as to the general uses of Peruna explained within the wrapper of each bottle.

Peruna, Man-a-lin and La-cu-pia manufactured by the Peruna Company, Columbus, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores.

SPECIAL NOTICE—Many persons inquire for The Old-time Peruna. They want the Peruna that their fathers and mothers used to take. The Peruna is now called Katarno. If your druggist or dealer does not keep it for sale write the Katarno Company, Columbus, Ohio, and they will tell you all about it.

One of the significant features in the registration in eastern cities is the big slump in Philadelphia and the increase in New York. The falling off in Philadelphia is principally noted in what have been known as the Republican gang wards. At the same time the increase in New York City, which amounts to over 25,000, is in the heavy Democratic wards. The heavier the Democratic vote is in Greater New York the easier it will be to overcome the normally large Republican majority in the remainder of the state. This year, however, owing to the Republican split, there is not likely to be any such majority, and Democratic victory will thus be made doubly certain through an increased majority for Wilson in the city.

THE OLD CRY OF CALAMITY

(Youngstown Vindicator.)

As a last resort the Republican campaign managers have returned to their old cry of calamity and panic and distress. They are sending out circulars and warning the people of calamity that will follow defeat of their party at the polls the coming month, this in the midst of plenty and prosperity all along the line such as the country has not witnessed in a presidential year, usually a bad year for business.

This is an admission of the hopelessness of the case of the party which has assumed that it alone is competent to manage public affairs and shows an unwillingness to submit it to the people to return a verdict upon its merits.

Besides, there is the testimony of business men the country over as to the outlook which is regarded as never brighter for business activities, and the Republican party never faced such a prospect of defeat as it faces this year.

The foolishness of the calamity waiting becomes all the more apparent.

Then history records that the worst panics this country has ever known came under the operations of high protection, under Republican administrations, save

Being good is like using an umbrella—you have to keep it up in order to get any benefit out of it.

If Taft has recently gained to the extent that his friends claim he must have been in a close race with Debs for fourth place.

The Greeks have driven the Turks from Mount Olympus and they may yet sail again in their black-ribbed ships across the wine-colored deep and land on the Trojan plain.

There would be no demand for tariff revision downward if the millionaire beneficiaries of high protection had consented to tariff duties that would have been honest protection instead of downright robbery of the American consumers.

In its Presidential election forecast, the New York Herald shows Woodrow Wilson to be far in the lead and that the slight gains that have been made for Taft all come from Roosevelt. The Herald makes the following showing of the per cent of the total vote that will be cast for each candidate: Wilson 42.1, Roosevelt 28.9, Taft 22.5, Debs 6.5.

the panic of 1893, which broke under Cleveland's administration, but the Republicans had prepared for that before going out of power. The Harrison administration had the plates prepared for a bond issue to tide the treasury over, but managed to get along and turned things over to the next administration which inherited a Republican panic. The panic of 1873 happened so long ago that most of the people have forgotten, but that didn't come from defeating Republican administration or from lowering the tariff.

The last panic this country had was in 1907 under Republican administration and under Republican tariff. It was then the workmen took their pay in clearing-house checks so common all over the country.

The Republican party has a record for panic and distress under high tariff which should cause its managers to halt before crying calamity now.

There has been much boasting of late about the Taft gains in public sentiment. And yet the Taft leaders are unable to show that he is ahead of Roosevelt in the running.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Price" Tonight.
At the Auditorium tonight Clarence Bennett and company will present Edna Marshall in "The Price." "The Price" is a modern drama in three acts from the pen of George Broadhurst, the author of "Bought and Paid For," "The Man of the Hour" and other successful plays. It deals with the problems some women encounter in the winning of happiness through love. In it Mr. Broadhurst touches one of the most momentous questions that can come into the lives of everyday folks. Miss Marshall is said to have a part worthy of her talents as one of the greatest emotional actresses on our stage today.

With his usual care for a perfect performance, Clarence Bennett and company selected a superior cast to support Miss Marshall in "The Price." Each of the characters has been placed in the hands of a player capable of giving Mr. Broadhurst's thoughts the fullest expression.

In the matter of stage equipment, "The Price" has been given the same careful study as always marks the Hudson theatre, New York, productions. The settings are in keeping with the play in every respect, and no detail has been overlooked to make the illusion perfect.

"Madame Sherry."
The real notable event of the present season will be the engagement of Wood, Frazee & Lederer's production of "Madame Sherry," the sensational French vaudeville set to music which will be seen at the Auditorium tomorrow night. According to all reports, "Madame Sherry" still continues to break records everywhere it is presented, and no doubt, the same case will exist when it is again presented here. The company to be seen in the play this season is said to be even stronger than the original cast, and comprises such notable artists as Cypsey Dale, Catherine Linyard, Maude Irving, Betty Burnell, Fred Frear, Cyril Ring, Joe Marba, Wilfred Young and others of equal prominence. The famous "Lederer" beauty chorus is an important factor of the production and includes only those who are singers, possessed of unusual beauty. While the standard musical numbers are still a part of the performance, a number of new songs are introduced to take the place of the old ones. Another special feature of the production is the charming display of new creations in gowns and millinery effects by the feminine portion of the organization. The production is elaborate and is considered one of the most colossal ever placed on any stage.

"Busy Izzy."
George Sidney, the funny little comedian to be seen at the head of the 1912 edition of the "Busy Izzy" company at the Auditorium theatre Friday evening, Oct. 25 is an actor who has no counterpart on the American stage. There are many comedians who essay the Hebrew role. There are some who have won considerable reputations doing so. Sidney has created a Hebrew which amuses those of the Hebrew faith who witness the comedian's work. His characterization is not a burlesque neither is it an imitation of any of the many types of this much abused character. "Izzy," as played by Mr. Sidney, is a little fellow, more sinned against than sinning, over alert for fun, a laugher as well as a laugh maker, always ready to invest in any airy scheme which may be broached, and on this account always losing money without learning the lesson of providence. This comedian's work is too well known to call for any comment.

Miss Carrie Webber is to be Mr. Sidney's chief aid in the fun making and assisting them will be found Dick Home, Nick Basil, Elwood Benton, Walter Webber, Leona Burdett, Lottie Leonard and an exceptionally large and clever chorus. Seats now selling.

"Girl and the Outlaw."
Bert Voshers's offering is conceded as being one of the best of its kind ever written by Roy La Mar, America's foremost playwright. "The Girl and the Outlaw" is a strong play that appeals to all ages. It deals with the human heart full of love, and depicting the dark side of life as well as the bright. The cast in itself is one that is considered to be the best picked in the theatrical profession, including Roy La Mar, the author, Alice Gordon, Gino Griffon, Bert Roberts, Gertrude Holland, I. C. Midland and others. "The Girl and the Outlaw" will appear here for one night and matinee, Saturday Oct. 26 at the Auditorium, for the first time at popular prices.

The Orpheum.
The bill for the Orpheum theatre for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will include one of the most expensive acts ever in Newark, in the person of Art Adair, a wonderful impersonator of character. This act is a big musical feature. His impersonations are eight in all, and with much comedy, he plays many different kinds of musical instruments. Every one will surely remember Fitch Cooper, the Musical Ruin. Mr. Adair is said to be much better, as far as music and comedy goes. Newport & Bert, in their comedy novelty act, are a scream from start to finish, as they break up housekeeping in a very strange and funny way.

Shaw & Lemar, comedy singers and dancers, are a big feature.

A classic number is the "German Models," in their artistic poses in bronze. Manager Boyce says it is a great piece of art, as all the poses are of the highest nature, with electrical effect and an act every one should see.

Tonight, for the last time, will be played the bill for the last half. Do not fail to hear the Star Trio, as it is a big hit.

Order your seats early by phone. No. 1206 is the number.

Millions of Catarrh Victims Have Used Booth's HYOMEI With Wonderful Results.

This picture shows the little hard rubber HYOMEI inhaler the exact size. If you own one you can get a bottle of HYOMEI (liquid) for only 50 cents.

If you do not own one, $1.00 will secure for you a complete outfit, including inhaler. And now you have in your possession something that has banished more cases of catarrh than all the catarrh specialists on earth.

Just breathe HYOMEI—that's all you have to do—no stomach dosing. The soothing, healing air passes over the inflamed membrane, kills the germs and heals the inflammation.

It is guaranteed to end the distress of catarrh, coughs, croup and colds, or money back. Distributed by Evans-Dug Store, and druggists everywhere. Booth's HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) is Australian Eucalyptus and other grand antiseptics. It contains no cocaine or other injurious drugs.

FIRST THINGS

The first friction matches were patented in England 83 years ago today, by Walker of Stockton-on-Tees, England. Lucifer matches came into use about 1834. For many years matches were very expensive, a package of fifty costing a shilling or 25 cents. In 1842 Reuben Partridge, an Englishman, patented machinery for manufacturing the splints. Three years later Schrotter of Vienna produced his amorphous phosphorus, by heating ordinary phosphorus in a gas which it cannot absorb, and the use of matches was thereby rendered less dangerous and the manufacture less unhealthy. For a long time workers in match factories were subjected to the likelihood of terrible occupational diseases, but the processes now in use reduce the dangers to a minimum. For 30 years match manufacture in France has been a government monopoly. The first American match patent was granted 76 years ago today.

WAGE EFFECTIVE WAR ON THE WHITE PLAGUE

Citizens of Ohio Communities Have Erected Near the City of Springfield, an Institution for the Treatment of Tuberculosis That Is Recognized as a Model.—Dr. Henry Baldwin in Charge.

ROBERT G. PATERSON, PH. D., Executive Secretary Ohio Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

About one mile beyond the eastern line of the city of Springfield, Ohio, on the Columbus, Springfield & Dayton Electric railroad, there is an institution which is proving every day the greatest boon to the people of the communities which it serves—the District Tuberculosis Hospital.

Opened on October 24, 1910, by the Joint Board of County Commissioners of Champaign, Clark, Green, and Madison counties, the hospital has steadily grown in its efforts to care for the many victims of "the great white plague" which appeal to it for treatment.

The hospital was established under a law passed by the state legislature in 1909, which makes it mandatory upon each and every board of county commissioners to provide accommodations in separate buildings for all persons, in the county infirmaries, suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis. A provision of the law makes it possible for any two or more counties not to exceed five to combine and erect a district hospital to be maintained jointly by the several counties.

That some hospital provision must

ultimately be made in Ohio for a majority of the persons suffering with tuberculosis admits of no question if the state of Ohio is to be in the vanguard of the states which are fast controlling the disease and showing a reduction in their death rate from this disease. A reduction in some instances of 50 per cent in twenty-five years. This is remarkable when it is recalled that tuberculosis has been constantly and continuously carrying destruction into every part of the world since the dawn of civilization.

Of course it might be that the county commissioners of your county may not appreciate the pressing necessity for providing for the health of the people in your county. It may be that bridges, roads, culverts and ditches or the poor in the infirmaries great white plague and who will eventually die from the attacks of the germ. When you have done this, you may be interested enough in the welfare of your own community to inquire what is being done in other cities, counties and states. Then you will probably visit the District Tuberculosis hospital at Springfield.

You will find that the site of the hospital is well chosen, consisting of 52 acres of good farm land. When this property was purchased for $30,000 there were a large brick homestead, several barns and sheds upon it. The homestead has been converted into a combination administration and hospital building. The officers have their living and business quarters in the front part of the house and the rear part has nine bright individual rooms for the patients who are very low with tuberculosis.

Dr. Henry Baldwin, medical superintendent of the institution from its foundation, believes in substantial but not in elaborate or extravagant buildings. He has utilized practically every building that was on the site—has improved them until at present they present a very good appearance and each serves a useful purpose.

Dr. Baldwin has added a large shack for second stage cases of tuberculosis which will accommodate 20 patients. This cost, completely equipped, about $3,900. Ten individual shacks were erected last year for incipient cases of tuberculosis at a cost of $175 each equipped. Ten more are being erected this summer.

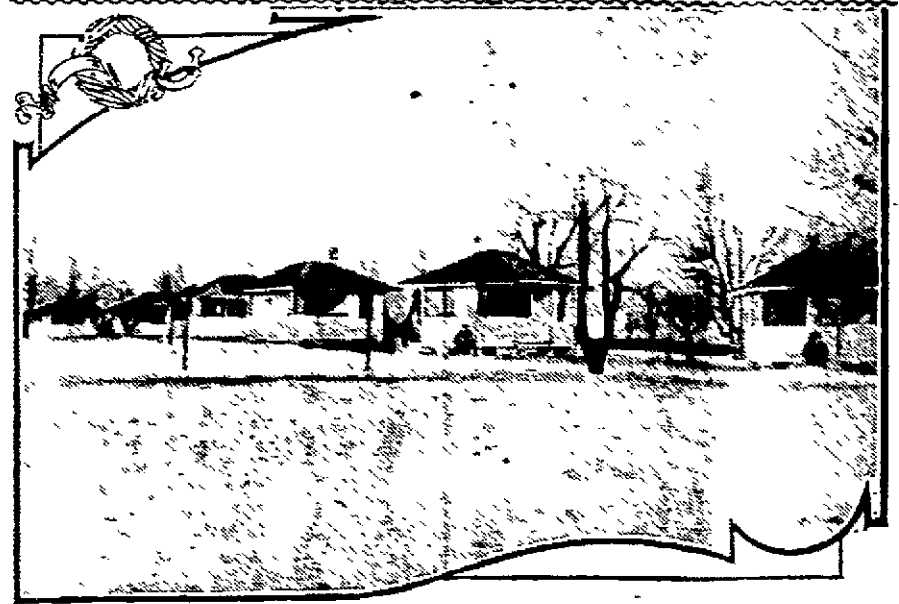

This completes his present equipment. Now what is the result of Dr. Baldwin's effort to keep the atmosphere of his institution as nearly like a home as possible instead of frankly making it a hospital in the ordinary sense. Some patients remain for a year or more and the home-like appeal makes them more contented than case, will serve our purpose better. A 13-year-old girl of Springfield was admitted to the institution on July 11, 1911. She was in a pitiful physical condition, weighing only 79 pounds and carrying a temperature constantly above 102 degrees. No noticeable change was observed in her condition the first few weeks. Then she began to improve slowly until September the treatment of fresh air, good food and rest began to show a temperature rarely reaching 99. On June 1, 1912, she was discharged from the hospital, cured, weighing 106½ pounds, and never running a temperature above normal for the previous three months. This child had suffered from tuberculosis for fully six months before entering the hospital, but is now a perfect picture of health.

If this can be done at Springfield it can be done elsewhere in the state. That many children similar to this girl have the disease is beyond question—that they could be cured in the same manner as this girl was is easily demonstrated—that hospital provision be made, is imperative.

What is your county doing about it?

INDIVIDUAL SHACKS—DISTRICT TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL, SPRINGFIELD, O.

The District Tuberculosis hospital is supported by Clark, Champaign, Green and Madison counties. It is established and maintained under warrant of law passed by the State Legislature in 1909. Fifteen such hospitals over the state would go a long way to solve the problem of controlling the spread of the "tubercle bacillus."

FIERCE REMEDIES.

The doc has been poking my ribs till they're barked. "You'll have to quit smoking," he sternly remarked. "Your heart is a-thumping like surf in a storm, and it's time you quit. You must, on your honor, cut out the cheroot, or you'll be a goner. The learned doctor's orders I follow one day, and over the borders of madness I stray. I'm filled with a yearning for spinach on fire: to keep a pipe burning is all I desire. My nerves in a pangle. I can't write a rhyme. I just fume and wrangle and cuss all the time. I shan't at my labor. My mind's in a fog. I scrap with my neighbor and poison his dog. For fragrant Havana I sigh and I pant; I bust the piano a nd browbeat my aunt. So bring me my briar that gives me a smoke that is a joy. I'd rather smoke than be an old fogey of two hundred years, deprived of the stogie that comforts and cheers. That life is a treasure no one will deny; but sometimes the pleasure of living's too high.

"DIVINE SARAH," 68 TUESDAY. NOW A GREAT-GRANDMOTHER

It is a lie—mong Doo, a monstrous lie—that "the divine Sarah" is sixty-nine years old, as was recently stated in the European and American press. A bias with such falsehood. Has France lost its spirit of chivalry, that such canards should be uttered of its fairest flower of womanhood, and not be wiped out in blood? Then let Ireland, through me, its representative, rise to the defense of outraged and enraged femininity, and fling back the lie into the molar of those who gave it publicity. I share the righteous indignation of Mme. Bernhardt that she should have been made out to be older than she is—for, be it known, and Tuesday celebrated her sixty-eighth birthday. True, she may be past the first blush of maidenhood, as the world reckons age; true, she is a mother, and a grandmother, and a great-grandmother, and to be all of these is usually thought to be incompatible with tender years; true, she does not look quite so fresh as when she made her bow, at eighteen, on the stage of the Comedie Francaise, as a lovely and talented Iphigenie. Yet she remains young, divinely young, yes, young as is this gay world to the eyes of babes and lovers. In her dwells that spirit of eternal youth that age cannot wither, nor custom stale, in its infinite variety.

And would you know the "divine Sarah's" secret of perpetual youth? It is this: Work, hard work, for ten months a year, and play, hard play, for two months. Add to these the habit of personal cleanliness, temperance, daily exercise, the avoidance of worry, and the cultivation of altruism, and you have the Bernhardt recipe. Simple, is it not? Yes, it is not, for few there are who can live up to the formula in these days of rush and hurry.

It was half a century ago this year that Rosina Sarah Dimala, the comely girl who later became the most admired woman of the world's stage under the name of Sarah Bernhardt, made her theatrical premiere in Paris. Her life story is familiar to all Americans, most of whom have seen her on one or another of her "farewell tours" of this continent. This year she rounded out her career by one of her most remarkable and best deserved triumphs when she appeared in her own theatre for the first time in the title role of "L. Reine Elizabeth." Nearly three scores and ten, the "Perpetual Sarah" looked almost as young as ever, and conquered the difficulties of a trying part in a manner that brought round an enthusiastic applause.

Before her recent return to Paris to prepare for her London season, Mme. Bernhardt spent several months boating, fishing and indulging in other sports with her son, Maurice Bernhardt, and in playing with her granddaughter. Within the last year it has been reported that Mme. Bernhardt contemplated matrimony. M. Lou Tellegen and Calzone, a young Greek actor, having been named as among the fortunate gentlemen upon whom Sarah was contemplating the bestowal of her heart and hand. Mme. Bernhardt was quoted as saying that marriage would double her strength and enable her to make another trip to America, the land she loves so much. The opposition of Maurice Bernhardt is alleged to have caused the divine actress to relinquish her plans for further matrimonial felicity. Perhaps she did not hold any such intentions—for Mme. Bernhardt is a better press agent than the lamented Phineas T. Barnum, and overlooks no chance to acquire publicity.

THE LITTLE PAY

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

A DAIRY pays just in proportion to the skill and care with which it is managed. Owners of little farms who have transportation facilities can afford to make a dairy the basis of their operations. A place of thirty to fifty acres will maintain a dozen cows, without excluding poultry, vegetables and fruit.

The way to make such a dairy pay is to establish a reputation for high grade milk, cream and butter. Private customers can be secured who will pay liberally for these commodities if they are sweet and wholesome and show evidence of intelligent handling. The owner must insist on cleanliness about the barn and in the pails and cans.

One problem of the dairyman is to keep the milk from being contaminated, either through dirt falling into it or by its absorption of undesirable odors. If the stables are clean, dry and well ventilated there will be no bad odors for the milk to absorb. Of course there should be no cesspools about the stables, and the ground under the barn should be well drained. Poor drainage cannot help but cause objectionable odors about the barn. The udder and the flanks of the cow should be thoroughly wiped with a damp cloth before milking.

One of the cardinal points that a good dairyman will observe in handling his cows is regularity in all his work. He will feed the cows at definite hours and milk them at stated intervals. If a cow is milked at 6 o'clock in the morning she should be milked again at 6 at night, the best results being obtained when the time between milkings is twelve hours.

If for any reason it is advisable to change the feed of a herd it should be done gradually, so that the cows will become accustomed to the change and not get "off feed" so readily.

Cows should not be abused, as any ill treatment affects their milk production. On the contrary, they should even be petted, as they respond wonderfully to kind and gentle treatment in a way that is profitable for the owner.

One milker may be able to get 20 per cent more milk than another. The milker should not worry the cow by loud talking or abuse of any kind. A cow should be milked quietly and quickly, and as the last milk drawn contains far more fat than the first, special care should be taken to get all the milkings. In milking the whole hand should be used, closing first that part next to the udder. The cow's teats should be dry when she is milked. Wetting the teats is not only a filthy habit, but it also allows the teats to chap in bad weather. If there is difficulty in milking a cow dry a small amount of vasoline may be rubbed on the hands.

In the summer the cows get plenty of exercise, but they should be provided with a shady place where they can rest. In fly time it may be advisable to keep the cows in the barn during the day, darkening the windows to keep the insects out.

With ten or a dozen cows the farmer needs a reliable hired man, for there is a great deal of work in running a dairy, and it should be performed in a thorough manner. The family will find much to do in connection with the poultry, vegetables and fruit without undertaking all the drudgery of the farm and dairy.

To produce a perfect plant there must be a perfect seed. planted in a perfectly prepared soil and cultivated by a trained intelligence. In just so far as there is a deficiency in any one of these particulars will the result fall short of a perfect crop.

KEEPING "BOARDER COWS?"

Or Are Your Animals the Kind That Pay For Food and Labor?

The cow, from an economic standpoint, is simply a manufacturing plant through which is run so much raw material in the form of nutrients to turn out the finished products—milk and cream. Many of these manufacturing plants are run at a dead loss, but their owners do not know it, as they are too indifferent to take the trouble to keep books so they can find it out. This is one of the lamentable defects

Photograph by University of Wisconsin agricultural experiment station.

SPECIMEN OF THE "BOARDER COW."

In farming as a manufacturing enterprise. In any other phase of industrial activity such negligence of business methods would spell bankruptcy. The Babcock test and a pair of scales make it possible for every farmer to keep accurate accounts with each cow in his herd, and where this is done it does not take long to convince the owner that the cow that does not pay her board had better move on. But as yet the major portion of dairy farmers have not risen to the point where they test each cow's production. Through the organization of co-operative cow testing associations in a number of different states improvement is being rapidly made, but it is probably a safe estimate today to assume that 20 per cent of the milk producing cattle in this great dairy state of Wisconsin are not paying their owners for the feed and care which they require.

In these days, when modern machinery has so greatly reduced the relative use of hand labor, a lamentable lack of efficiency is shown where a man spends his time milking and caring for a number of animals whose returns often do not pay for the feed consumed, let alone the labor expended.—Circular of Information, University of Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station.

Value of Alfalfa Hay.

That alfalfa hay contains more pounds of protein for each 100 pounds than any other kind of cured hay and also contains a large amount of carbohydrates are interesting facts brought out in a recent bulletin of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin.

FEEDS FOR DAIRY COWS.

Corn Silage Is Better Than Mixture of Field Peas and Oats.

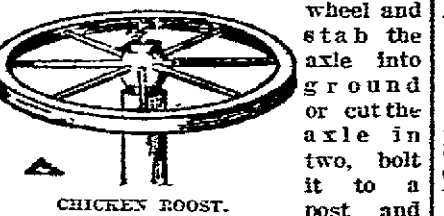

Canada field peas and oats sown on good soil and under favorable conditions will be ready for soiling or ensilage in about two and a half months. The growing of oats and peas together, says Hoard's Dairyman, produces a larger amount of nutrients per acre than when grown separately. The combination grows well and produces a very palatable feed.

In 100 pounds of corn silage there are 17.2 pounds of digestible nutrients and in 100 pounds of oats and pea silage about 13 pounds. The composition of all feedstuffs varies, especially when cut green; but, on the whole, it is safe to say that corn silage will contain more digestible nutrients than oats and peas, although the oats and peas are richer in protein.

It would not be advisable to sow clover or timothy seed with oats and peas, for they form a very dense growth which would not permit the young clover or timothy plants to grow, and, if they did, they would be so weak that after the peas and oats were removed, the sun's rays would be very apt to kill them. We do not think it advisable under any conditions to sow grass seed with oats and peas.

Novel Chicken Roost.

G. Deyer, an Oklahoma subscriber of the Iowa Homestead, sent a unique plan for a chicken roost. Take a cart wheel and stab the axle into ground or cut the axle in two, bolt it to a post and set the post in the ground. When the chicken house needs cleaning all you need to do is to lift the wheel off and it is out of the way. Then, too, if there is a chicken on the other side from you that you wish to catch, just turn the wheel around. This makes a very convenient chicken roost.

Taft to Push Arbitration

Believed He Will Urge Treaties at Short Session.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR PASSAGE

Senate More Opposed to Them Now Than Before—Peace Movement Has a Rocky Road—Roosevelt's Philosophical View of Danger to His Life. Possible Senate Shake-up.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Somewhere I have seen it announced that President Taft intends to push the arbitration treaties during the coming session of congress or seek a method to enlarge the scope of arbitration. The treaties will not be as strong in the senate this winter as last because the developments since that time have made arbitration less desirable.

Had the canal legislation, with its provisions for free American ships, preceded consideration of the arbitration treaties it is doubtful whether they could have passed even in their much amended form. Already we are getting ready to balk at taking the question of canal tolls and interpretation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to The Hague, although it is claimed by foreign governments that these questions are arbitrable under the present blanket treaties.

At a Low Ebb.

When we observe that after years of effort in the direction of arbitration there has been war between Italy and Turkey and now the Balkan states are at a low ebb. Turkey had asked to have all the pending questions submitted to The Hague tribunal rather than to arms, but neither Italy nor the Balkan states would arbitrate. The fact is that no country will arbitrate when it sees the case likely to go against it, nor will it consent to submit vital questions to arbitration.

Turkey would like to arbitrate, for it could carry the disputes along interminably, like everything in diplomacy, and aggrieved people will not submit to such delays.

It is interesting to observe that since the organization of The Hague tribunal there have been many wars. Russia, which proposed the scheme, has been at war, and all the great powers which are parties to the agreement for arbitration have been preparing more industriously for war than ever before.

Annual Report Time.

Every man with any kind of a title in the government service is busy these days preparing his annual report. Reams of paper and much printing are required so that every fellow can give a long and uninteresting account of the transactions of the fifth assistant auditor's office and of the chief of several hundred divisions and bureaus. Finally these will all be compiled under a heading "messages and documents" and will weigh down some old Washington building until they decay. But all this furnishes employment for printers in the government printing office during the dull season.

Roosevelt's Bodyguard.

From the time he became president Roosevelt has always had a bodyguard when he has been active in public affairs. Of course in Africa and when he was leading a quiet life there was no guard, but when he entered the present campaign he had somebody on the lookout for him. And yet he did not have much confidence in such a guard.

"If a man wants to kill me and sacrifice his own life in the attempt," he once said to me, "he can do it. But the fellow who tries to kill me and gets away with it will have to be quicker than I am."

And yet he knew all the time that the fellow who was willing to make the sacrifice of his own life could get near enough to kill him.

"Missouri Going Home."

"Missouri is going home." I read in a paper and upon investigation found that it meant that Missouri, after voting in two presidential elections for Republicans, would return to Democracy and give Governor Wilson 60,000 majority and elect every Democratic congressman with the exception of Dick Bartholdt. Nobody could beat Bartholdt in the district they have carved out for him in St. Louis.

What New Democrats Will Find.

When a lot of new Democrats break into congress after the coming election they will find all the good places pre-empted and nailed down. That was what most of the new men in the present congress found, although they had taken the precaution to remove the selection of committees from the hands of the speaker and give the work to the house. It worked out just the same. The old time members, the men with seniority of service, got the best places. That is what they will do in the next congress. Some will move up a few pegs, but the waste places will be for the new men.

Senate May Change.

For years seniority alone counted in naming senate committees, but there are rumors that many of the new men will make an effort to break that rule when the senate convenes next March. There is a possible progressive fight about committee places, and some of the old men may receive a surprise.

A man may smile and smile and be a villain—or just a simple idiot.

Jean Jacques Rousseau, Philosopher and Scoundrel

Jean Jacques Rousseau, self-confessed thief, wrote strongly on uprightness. He also preached fiery discourses on the sacredness of domestic affection—and sent his own five children to a foundling asylum. He changed religions as another man would change from summer to winter clothes. A writer on morality, his own morals were unspeakable. He was ever eager to receive aid; and still more industrious in abusing benefactors. He had a genius for philosophical writings—and a far greater genius for making enemies. The kindest thing that can be said about him personally is that he was probably more or less insane. Here is his story:

Rousseau was the son of a Swiss watchmaker. His father in 1722, when the lad was ten years old, became involved in a street row and had to leave his Geneva home, calmly deserting his family. Jean Jacques was brought up by his mother's relatives, who apprenticed him at thirteen to a notary. The boy and his master could not get on together, so Jean was apprenticed over again, this time to an engraver. All his long life Rousseau quarreled with everybody into whose society he was thrown. He began with the engraver. At sixteen he "jumped" his apprenticeship and ran away from Geneva.

He then began a series of wanderings which were more or less interesting, but scarcely profitable either to undergo or tell about. He changed his religion at the outset, encountering some rather doubtful adventures, and at last became a footman in the household of a Mme. de Verceilis. While he was working there he stole a costly ribbon. The theft was discovered. Rousseau saved himself from punishment by falsely accusing a maid servant of the theft. The tale of this wholly shameful affair is found in his celebrated "Confessions."

When his employer died, Rousseau found another situation—and promptly lost it on account of his conduct. His experience for the next few years led him through all grades of society, from vagabondage to court circles. It was not until 1745 that he won any fame. Then he became known as a clever writer and musician. Several persons of high rank took an interest in his career. From each of these people he accepted what aid he could get, then quarreled with his benefactors and usually spoke and wrote ill of them.

In a prize essay, written in 1750, he openly declared that progress and higher civilization had proved a curse to mankind. This essay made him for a time the idol of Paris' artificial and novelty-seeking society. He followed up his literary success by a really beautiful opera. But his attacks on various French customs and ideals made Paris an uncomfortable abode for him. Back he went to Geneva (again changing his religion to fit his surroundings) and met with a cordial reception from the learned men of Switzerland.

Here he took up his literary work again and dazzled the world by his "problem novels" and philosophical treatises. But he continued his life effort of making as many enemies as possible. And such enemies as his personality could not reach were made by his writings. His novel "Emile"—a radical sort of educational thesis in fiction form—was condemned by the Paris parliament, and Rousseau dared not set foot in the French capital for fear of arrest. Other works of his were denounced by the Swiss authorities. His "Contrat Social" (which demanded that governments be ruled by the people and preached universal suffrage) brought down upon him the hatred of conservative thinkers. Altogether, he began to find it hard to choose a place of abode where he would be safe from persecution.

He went to England and there quarreled with his patrons, behaved insolently toward the king, and found it convenient to come back to the continent of Europe. This time he was allowed to settle in Paris. His health had become shattered. So had his mind. To add to his woes, he married Therese Le Vasseur, former cook in a third-rate inn. Their five children he sent to a foundling asylum, thus giving his enemies a fine chance to compare his unnatural action with the high sentiments he had written about the sanctity of the home and the education of the young. Therese's mother was the typical comic paper mother-in-law. She rendered Rousseau's home life miserable.

On July 2, 1778, crushed under real and imaginary woes, Rousseau died in a fit. Some historians think despair drove him to suicide.

His "Confessions"—a wonderful if unreliable book—give the man's distorted view of his own life and of life in general. A genius, a blackguard, and probably—in later years, at least—a semi-lunatic.

LIBRARY

a day when character-building and health-building have been forgotten in an unseemly eagerness to hustle through a series of academic requirements in schedule time.

The meeting was called to order by Miss Caroline Burnite of Cleveland, president of the library association, who introduced Wilson Hawkins, superintendent of schools, the presiding officer of the evening.

In introducing the speaker of the evening, Mr. Hawkins spoke of the fame of Dr. Heeter as a practical educator, and voiced the pleasure of the community in the opportunity of hearing one who could speak with authority on a subject of such vital interest.

After expressing his pleasure in appearing before the library association, Dr. Heeter attacked his theme by drawing a vivid contrast between the education of the past and the education of the present—the education of our fathers in the field, forest and farm, and the education of today—the former with a curriculum based on life, nature and necessity, and the latter composed of arbitrary texts, courses and academic requirements, lacking in virility and unproductive of strength and efficiency.

In detail and with fidelity the speaker described the old school of the three Rs, with its power in building and inspiring thrift, industry and moral responsibility, and traced the transition in a single generation to the institution of the present; how farm and home life have been superseded by urban and apartment house existence; how home production has been relegated to the past with the development of the factory; how labor has been affected by the giant combinations and how science and invention have been responsible for a narrowing specialization in all lines, each with an attendant effect upon the school youth of today. In this connection he quoted a short verse by Sam Foss, which showed most aptly the domestic and social evolution of a century.

"The idleness of the youth of cities is one of the most threatening conditions in American life," said the speaker.

"Boys and girls are no longer taught to do for themselves. Living in cities, under the new conditions, they lose the development of character and conduct, and a sort of lassitude is encouraged.

"We are putting the boys out of business. The animal instinct is the impulse to act, but we quell it. There are trees here, but you must not climb; there are stones, but you must not throw; there is grass, but the sign says, 'Keep off.'"

"The new responsibility which the schools have not yet met is to provide for the loss of the agencies that once counted so strongly in character-building, for not yet do they meet the responsibility of developing fibre, virility and red blood.

"Overwork! I have been in schools from one end of the country to the other, and I have yet to see a boy who was overworked. You don't overwork boys these days—they won't stand for it. Teachers are hired to make education easy. Knowledge is looked up in books and charts and courses, and the teachers are supposed to unlock these and let it out. The teacher of today objectifies, illustrates, and coddles the child into learning. Even the discipline of schools is getting easy. Every child comes to school tagged: 'Hands Off,' 'Don't Break' and 'Right Side On.'"

"One criticism is made which I think is timely. We have laid down an over-amount of intellectual requirements along pedagogic and academic lines, and our system is one-sided and unbalanced."

Dr. Heeter then took up the four elements, or fundamentals, of a really new-fashioned education, those of the health, head, hand and heart.

"Health first," he said, "for any amount of erudition gained at the cost of health is too expensive. Modified and simplified courses of study, with a high degree of thoroughness and attention to the basic principles."

Of the education of the head, he said: "Thousands of children are hopelessly behind because of poor academic requirements. Vagabondage begins with the child who has been marked as a failure in school. The boys and girls drop out in the lower grades and this in itself constitutes a moral and economic problem, as well as one of education, for it leaves them unfitted for any vocational occupation."

Of the next factor, the education of the hand, he said: "We train the child a little way in books and away from labor, and they leave the schools with their maximum earning capacity at a very low point.

"The specialization of labor of today demands special training, but the specialist is narrow. We do things better and more easily today, but we have developed a nation of specialists who are narrow, doomed to routine and with their development arrested. This isolation has made the people hunt libraries; it is the incentive for social organizations, clubs, church brotherhoods and fraternities.

"The library of the new day must recognize the changed conditions to find its true place. It must carry to the schools and the homes a larger education than the schools can provide. Libraries were started for the specialist, the academician, the scholar and the man of research, and have not yet gone to the larger good."

"Is there to be some institution which, through the schools, will carry an abundance of literature to the children? We keep the child in a single reader for a year; he learns to read, instead of reading to learn, and then we wonder why children do not develop a taste for literature.

"In view of all this, are we broad enough, and do we realize the community life and responsibility? The library has not come into its own so long as the school and the library are so far apart.

"Health, head, hand and heart. Health first, for without it the children are invalids. Head next, for with health and no intelligence the children are imbecile. Hand, then, for with health and intelligence, but without efficiency, we make tramps and parasites. Heart fourth, for with health, intelligence and skill of hand, but without moral conduct, we have sinners.

"Health, head, hand and heart—these must constitute the broad aim in the new-fashioned education."

At the conclusion of the address, Miss Burnite, the president, stated that Dr. Heeter's train did not leave for several hours, and expressed the hope that the opportunity would be given for the members of the library association to meet him.

In accordance with this, an impromptu reception was held, at which time many of the audience took occasion to convey to the speaker their pleasure in hearing him.

Today the members of the library association held the usual meetings at the Trinity parish house, at which matters of interest and importance to them, together with subjects of routine, were presented.

At the afternoon meeting the first speaker was Mr. A. N. Root, librarian of Oberlin College. Mr. Root's offering was a report and a discussion. The next speaker was Mr. Henry E. Lezier, president of the A. L. A., who took as his subject, "Of Much Love and Some Knowledge of Books."

The evening program is set for 8 o'clock tonight in the High School Auditorium, at which time Dr. Alexander Johnson, secretary of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, will speak on the subject, "The Place of a Public Library in a Modern Community."

Dr. Johnson comes to Newark preceded by the most favorable reports of those who know him and his work and the members of the association anticipate an address of interest and worth.

BEECH WOODS

The contractors were compelled to reopen the Winegardner spur of the Maggie Miller ditch this week and relay the big tile. The work in this part has proved an endless and very troublesome job and it is now hoped that this will end the terrible task of the big Miller ditch improvement controversy.

Ray Anspach of Brand has accepted a position in C. M. Euxton's grocery in Thornville.

C. E. Dupler was in Cincinnati this week attending the tri-state convention of implement dealers.

E. D. Bessey of the Bessey Granite company of Zanesville was a business visitor through here this week.

Clarence Hanby of Bruno and Alice Buchanan of Zionsville were married at the Reformed parsonage in Somerset Thursday evening.

Ervin Miller attended the big Democratic rally at Lancaster Wednesday evening.

Dr. Orvil Meehling, an optician and a former druggist in Thornville, and Laura Alsop of the same place were married at Franklin this week by the groom's brother, Rev. F. D. Meehling.

Mrs. Nancy Cloud, an aged resident of Near Oakthorpe, is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Jane Drum, of Route No. 7.

Guy From has home from Tiffin a part of this week.

An application has been filed by Arthur Clum in the probate court of Fairfield county for the appointment of a guardian for Mamie Clum, an alleged imbecile of this place.

The funeral of the 6-year-old son of Owen Winegardner was held at the Zion Lutheran church Sunday morning and interment made. The child had been afflicted with a diseased spleen and recently underwent an operation without relief.

George Foster has purchased two fine sporting dogs.

Will Hull is improving his premises with concrete sidewalks.

Owen Coner is re-roofing his dwelling this week.

C. E. Dilts is building an addition to his barn.

Ira and Oscar Foster were Newark visitors Wednesday.

Mabel Hite had been a Broadway favorite ever since her metropolitan debut as Nerissa in "A Venetian Romance." She always displayed a distinct personality in grotesque parts and an unusual versatility in character roles. She had the facility of making her audience laugh or cry with her as she saw fit.

Miss Hite was born in Ashland, Ky., on May 30, 1885. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hite. Most of her girlhood was spent in Kansas City. Her first professional appearance on the regular stage was with Dunn & Ryly's Company in "A Milk White Flag."

Her first real hit was made as Estelle in "The Telephone Girl," which part was created by Clara Lipman.

Later Miss Hite appeared in vaudeville in partnership with Walter Jones. She married Michael J. Donlin early in 1906, when he was with the New York Giants. Vincent Bryan wrote them a baseball sketch and it was with his wife that Donlin made his first stage appearance.

ODDS OF 4 TO 1
ON GOV. WILSON IS
NEW YORK BETTING

New York, Oct. 23. — Tammany money in larger quantity than Wall street has seen at any time since the presidential campaign began appeared in Wall street yesterday for election bets. On Wilson odds of 4 to 1 were even more firmly established than before.

On Sulzer a considerable amount of money was wagered, and to be Tammany interests, at odds of 8 to 5. Odds were also given that Straus (Bull Moose) would receive a larger number of votes than Hedges (Republican).

One of the surprises of the Wall street betting has been the manner in which Roosevelt backers have responded to odds given against their candidate. The odds of 4 to 1 on Wilson have been regarded as admitting of no possible defeat of the Democratic national ticket, yet all money offered on Wilson has been readily taken, in the majority of instances by Roosevelt men.

At the same time in the betting on who will receive the greater number of votes, Taft or Roosevelt, the Roosevelt backers are still asking odds of 5 to 4, with the Taft men willing to place their wagers on the basis of even money. A large number of bets have been made at even money on the extent of the popular vote of each of these candidates.

A considerable part of the betting now taking place represents hedging by those who wagered in the early part of the campaign. A bet made yesterday for a moderately large amount was that Roosevelt would not carry a single state. The odds were 1 to 5.

NEW DOCKING
FACILITIES FOR HOCKING

About Nov. 1, the Hocking Valley Railroad Company will award contracts for important improvements of the docks and terminals at Toledo, in which about $2,000,000 will be expended. One of the most profound changes which will result from this will be the diversion of coal tonnage of the Norfolk & Western from Sandusky to Toledo. This amounts to about 2,500,000 tons annually.

M. S. Connors, general manager of the Hocking Valley at Columbus, makes the following statement in reference to the matter: "Under the terms of an agreement with the Pennsylvania, the Hocking Valley must vacate its coal and ore handling plant on lower Summit street, Toledo, by the opening of navigation in 1914. This means that we must provide our own dock facilities, and the docks must be complete by that time. This means that Toledo will be the largest fresh water port for coal shipments in the world, and will mean the saving of Sandusky as a coal shipping port."

Another improvement contemplated by the Hocking Valley is the double-tracking of the entire system from Columbus to Toledo.
